

A GROWTH PLAN FOR WILDFLOWER COLLECTIVE

Let's fill your practice from right here on the Shore.

Carolyn,

In Colorado, the phone rang. Referrals came in, groups filled, and you never had to wonder where the next client would come from. Then you moved your life and your practice to the Shore, and things got quiet. When you are the one holding a practice, a team, and a family, that quiet gets loud. It is easy to start thinking the clients simply are not here.

Here is what we found: you do not have a market problem. You have a visibility problem. And a visibility problem can be fixed.

We took a hard look at how a new client would find you today. The honest answer is that she almost can't. Your current website is working against you:

WHAT A NEW CLIENT RUNS INTO RIGHT NOW

- ✗ The main button on your homepage leads to a dead page
- ✗ Google can barely read your site, so you don't show up in searches
- ✗ No ads have ever reached the families around you
- ✗ Your contact form is a clunky embedded Google form that hides its submit button until you scroll
- ✗ Your photo fails to load for most visitors
- ✗ Your practice speaks as "I" while you have a team of three

Meanwhile, the market you are worried about looks like this:

100,000+

people live within a 30 minute drive of your Easton office

1 in 5

adults faces a mental health challenge in any given year

~75

active clients is all it takes to keep you and your team full

The people are here. They are searching late at night, scrolling on their phones, and asking friends for names. They just can't find you yet. This plan fixes that, once, and points every piece of your marketing at the same person: the worried parent on the Mid-Shore who needs exactly what you do.

One more thing before the plan. We attached a screenshot of the homepage design we have already been working on, and the email that came with this dossier includes a short video overview. We hope it gives you a taste of what is to come.

ONE PROJECT, FIVE PARTS

Rebuild the whole path, from first glance to first session.

Each part depends on the one before it. Skipping a step is how marketing money gets wasted. Done together, they become one system that works while you are in session.

1

Get clear

A working session on your brand, your core values, and exactly who you serve best. We put your position in this market into plain words: the message, the person it is for, and why Wildflower over anyone else.

Why it matters: every page, ad, and dollar that follows aims at one person. Without this, marketing sprays and prays.

2

Get a home

A full redesign and build of meetwildflower.com on the direction we have already developed: your watercolor brand, your three therapists, honest fees, and one clear action on every page: request a free 15 minute consult.

Why it matters: every lead ends up here. Right now the site loses them at the door. The new one is built to welcome and convert.

3

Get wired

One-time setup of your ad infrastructure: a Meta business account, your Facebook and Instagram connected, and pixel tracking installed so we can see what every dollar does.

Why it matters: running ads without tracking is spending blind. This wiring makes every future dollar accountable.

4

Get seen

A Meta ad campaign built and published in your Ads Manager: five to ten custom ads, written and designed in your brand, targeted to about a 30 mile radius around your office, and fully compliant with Meta's rules for mental health advertising.

Why it matters: the mom scrolling at 9pm is not searching yet. Ads reach her first, with a message that sounds like you.

5

Get found

A one-time SEO treatment on the new site, setup and optimization of your Google Business Profile, and a tidy lead flow: every call and form lands in one place, so no inquiry slips away.

Why it matters: when someone near Easton searches "therapist near me," the map result gets the call. Today that call goes to someone else.

The point of doing it all at once: clarity shapes the website, the website converts the ad clicks, the pixel proves what works, and Google catches everyone the ads warmed up. One system, pointed at your people.

WHAT CHANGES

Ninety days from now

- ✓ A website that finally looks like your brand and turns visitors into consult requests
- ✓ Your practice on the map, literally: showing up in local search and on Google Maps
- ✓ Ads in your community's feed, reaching families within 30 miles of your office
- ✓ Every inquiry flowing to one place, with tracking that shows what brought them in
- ✓ A message you can repeat with confidence, because it is truly yours

One project. One price. Everything on page two.

Half is due to begin ($3,750) and half at launch. Most of this work completes in about six weeks.

Prefer to keep it simple? Pay in full up front and the price is a flat $7,000. That saves you $500.

Not included: your monthly ad budget, which goes straight to Meta, not to us. We suggest starting around $600 per month, and you can pause it anytime.

Say yes by August 31 and we will include your first 30 days of hands-on ads management, free. We watch the campaign daily and tune it as it learns.

This proposal is good through September 30, 2026.

YOUR INVESTMENT

$7,500

Complete, one-time. No retainer, no contract beyond this project.

NEXT STEPS

- 1 Reply with a yes, or with the questions on your mind. Both are welcome.
- 2 We send a simple agreement and an invoice for the deposit.
- 3 We schedule your positioning session and get to work. You will see the new website taking shape within the first two weeks.

You spend your days helping people see that their hard season is not the whole story. This is us doing the same for your practice. The clients are out there. Let's make sure they can find you.

Ben Kouba

Leaf9 · ben@leaf9.com

